Presents a National Conference

With

Dr. Dan Siegel:

“An Interpersonal Neurobiology Perspective
On Trauma, Child Development and Well-Being:
Integrating “Me” with “We”.’

- ✓ This two day National conference will explore the ways in which nine domains of integration can be the focus of clinical intervention.
- ✓ Ultimately, the ways we enable a “me” to become a differentiated and linked entity with a “we” form the pathway for healthy development across the lifespan.

- ✓ This National conference will provide an in-depth exploration of the interdisciplinary field of interpersonal neurobiology and its application to the understanding of trauma, child development and promotion of wellbeing.
- ✓ Attachment research will be reviewed from the perspective of neurobiology, and the various categories of attachment will be explored.
- ✓ The impact of trauma on the regulatory functions of the brain - the circuits that shape affect, attention, and behavior- will be reviewed. Dr. Siegel will discuss ways in which therapeutic interventions can engage the power of neuroplasticity- how the brain changes in response to experience.
- ✓ The effects of impaired integration will be explored.
- ✓ Developmental trauma can emerge from extremes of impaired regulation in interpersonal interaction. Overwhelming events can also induce impediments to integration within the nervous system, resulting in disruptions in memory, attention, and autonomic regulation. The healing process is proposed to involve interpersonal and intrapersonal forms of attunement that stimulate neuronal activation and growth toward integration. The corresponding increase in the linkage of differentiated neural regions results in a coordinated and balanced set of functions and structurally altered integrative circuits. The outcome of this hypothesized healing process is an integrated brain, empathic relationships, and a resilient mind.

Conference Objectives

- Learn how psychotherapy can loosen the grip of temperament and heal the lingering impact of traumatic experiences.
- Identify ways in which childhood temperament may persist as adult personality.
- Learn ways in which attachment influences the development of emotional regulation and the capacity for intimacy in adulthood.
- Identify the spectrum of personality traits and how these fit into the notion of “categories” of attachment.
- Identify the ways in which inborn neural propensities interact with experience to shape personality.
- Recognize the importance of genetics and temperament in human development.
- Understand the “nine domains of integration.”

About Dan Siegel, Ph.D.

Daniel J. Siegel received his medical degree from Harvard University and completed his postgraduate medical education at UCLA with training in pediatrics and child, adolescent and adult psychiatry.

He is currently clinical professor of psychiatry at the UCLA School of Medicine where he is on the faculty of the Center for Culture, Brain, and Development and the Co-Director of the Mindful Awareness Research Center.

An award-winning educator, Dr. Siegel is a Distinguished Fellow of the American Psychiatric Association and recipient of several honorary fellowships.

Dr. Siegel is also the Executive Director of the Mindsight Institute, an educational organization which offers online learning and in-person lectures that focus on how the development of mindsight in individuals, families and communities can be enhanced by examining the interface of human relationships and basic biological processes.

His psychotherapy practice includes children, adolescents, adults, couples, and families.

Dr. Siegel has authored or co-authored numerous works, including the Handbook of Psychiatry; The Developing Mind: How Relationships and the Brain Interact to Shape Who We Are; The Mindful Brain: Reflection and Attunement in the Cultivation of Well-Being; The Mindful Therapist: A Clinician's Guide to Mindsight and Neural Integration; Pocket Guide to Interpersonal Neurobiology: An Integrative Handbook of the Mind; The New Science of Personal Transformation; Parenting from the Inside Out: How a Deeper Self-Understanding Can Help You Raise Children Who Thrive; and The Whole-Brain Child: 12 Revolutionary Strategies to Nurture Your Child's Developing Mind.

Dr. Siegel's unique ability to make complicated scientific concepts easy to understand and exciting has led him to address diverse local, national and international groups of mental health professionals, neuroscientists, corporate leaders, educators, parents, public administrators, healthcare providers, policy-makers, and clergy.

He has been invited to lecture for the King of Thailand, Pope John Paul II, His Holiness the Dalai Lama, Google University, and TEDx. For 2010-2011, Dan served as the national Speaker for the Susan G. Komen for the Cure Mindfulness and Integrative Medicine Lectures.

Dr. Dan Siegel lives in Southern California with his family.
