Consent is...

- Consent is asking your partner before you start any sexual activity
- Consent is continuing to ask if the activity is okay
- Consent is an active choice, not something that "just happens"
- Consent is respectful of both partners
- Consent is focused on the people involved, not the environment or situation
- Consent is meant to make sure that sexual activity is fun for both
- Consent is a clear and definite "yes" – an enthusiastic "yes!"
- Consent is asking permission every time
- Consent is voluntary

Only you can give consent. Sex without consent is a crime.

How do I ask for consent?
Ask for what you want, clearly and distinctly, and see if it's okay with your partner.
Ask respectfully. Don't be aggressive, threatening, or manipulative.
Ask for consent before you try something new.
Ask for consent before you try something again.
Ask for consent throughout the intimate time you spend together, not just at the beginning. Not just at the end. Not just once.

How do I give consent?
Non-verbal signals are not enough. Use words. Be clear.
Say yes and mean it.
Say what you like and what you don't like.

How do I say no to unwanted sexual activity?
Say no and mean it. Use words. Be clear.

What do I do when someone says no?
Stop. You are obligated to stop any sexual contact someone says no to.
STOP No means no. If you say "no" or "stop" and the person does not stop, that is sexual assault. Sexual assault is any type of sexual contact without voluntary consent. Even without contact, some kinds of threats may also be considered assault. Sexual assault is against the law no matter what age you are.

Brainstorm ways of asking and ways of answering.

Consent is not...

- Consent is not kissing, touching, or engaging in any sexual activity without permission from each other
- Consent is not sexual activity with someone drunk, stoned, passed out, or asleep
- Consent is not arguing, pressuring, or forcing someone into sexual activity
- Consent is not possible when one person is under 16 and more than two years younger
- Consent is not possible when one person is in authority or has power or responsibility over the younger person
- Consent is not possible when one person doesn't understand what you are asking
- Consent is not a guarantee that you'll enjoy what you consented to

Ask. It's up to you to get consent.

What do you think? What else needs to be on these lists?

Gender matters!

Your culture sends different signals to men and women about their role in consent.
It is not the responsibility of girls and women to set boundaries and enforce them.
It is not the responsibility of boys and men to push the limits.
Whether you are a man or a woman, it is your responsibility to ask for what you want and to ask for consent from your partner.

Our body is yours. It's up to you.

RESPECT yourself and your partner when you ask for consent when you give consent when you say no

ask

*Dressing in a sexy way is not consent.
Having said yes last time is not consent.
Saying nothing is not consent.
Being drunk is not consent.
Dancing and staying out late is not consent.
Being in love is not consent.
Being married is not consent.
Consenting to one kind of activity is not consenting to the next.
Being a flirt is not consent.
Arousal is not consent.
Orgasm is not consent.
Ask. Sex without consent is a crime.*
